If you wish to allow access from dynamic DNS records (for example if your IP address changes whenever you connect to the internet but you have a dedicated dynamic DNS record from the likes of dyndns.org) then you can list the FQDN records in csf.dyndns and then set the following to the number of seconds to poll for a change in the IP address. If the IP address has changed iptables will be updated.

If the FQDN has multiple A records then all of the IP addresses will be processed. If IPV6 is enabled, then all IPv6 AAAA IP address records will also be allowed.

A setting of 600 would check for IP updates every 10 minutes. Set the value to 0 to disable the feature

DYNDNS = Default: 0 [0-86400]

To always ignore DYNDNS IP addresses in lfd blocking, set the following option to 1

DYNDNS_IGNORE =
